

A "bunch of good looking guys having fun"!

Ladies and Gentlemen,

I want to personally thank everyone and the organizing team for adding another memory in my little album of life. But what makes this memory special is that it was a blend of moments with people I have known for almost 6 decades and the time we spent in the lap of the very nature which happens to be another thing that I equally am passionate about, as I am with my bond to all of you. This whole setup left me enraptured.

As many of you know, we have tried to do our best in this walk of life, but for many of us, life looks a lot different at 65. The happiness in little things is the key. Who would have thought that a class full of kids from HHS in the 1970's would be meeting here under some grey clouds matching with the grey in the hair as well. Talking about grey hair, I must say that the whole event was very comfortable and refreshing as far as convenience for us is considered. Easy on the pocket, too, just like the snacks we ate after school.

Very delectable culinary delights. I got a chance to speak with everyone, and the pictures came out really good, too. For all of you wondering if we still look good in group photos, I can assure you we do as my son's friends overseas complimented us calling us a "bunch of good looking guys having fun" when he showed them the pictures.

Overall, this meetup was really memorable, and I look forward to many such events as the time and schedule permits. Stay young and stay blessed, my friends.
